Training for Seasoned Traders

This is specially designed program for those who already have been trading using Technical tools but doesn't find himself / herself confident. So for those I don't recommend to learn from scratch and this program is for those.

The session would be for an hour.

The number of session is not defined. It would be completely the decision of the student. Still five sessions are recommended.

During the session we would make strategy for tomorrow's market using various technical tools and filter out stocks for trading.

In next session, we would review those stocks and repeat the exercise as above.

Today, wide range of people knows what MACD and RSI are but fails to apply the same in trading. So I believe these hands on training can be useful to those.