

Study in France

The quality of French higher education is widely recognized throughout the world. French institutions figure prominently in the rankings of the Financial Times and Times Higher, and in the European Report on Science and Technologies published by the European Commission.

Each year, France makes massive investments in education and research. In fact, education is the largest category of government spending, accounting for more than 20% of the budget.

France is a country whose metropolitan territory is located in Western Europe and also comprises of various overseas islands, territories located in other continents. Metropolitan France extends from the Mediterranean Sea to the English Channel and North Sea and from the Rhine to Atlantic Ocean. The French republic is a democracy that is organized as a unitary semi-presidential republic. It is a developed country with 6th largest economy in the world.

France is the world's 3 leading host country for higher education with more than 300000 international students.

Why study in France

- No requirement of IELTS /TOEFL for Admission as well as VISA.
- Job search VISA of 1 year after studies.
- Its at the heart of the European continent.
- Accommodation help by French Government up to 40% of the rental charges.
- Very well paid internship during studies with multinational companies earning approx. 1000 EUR per month.
- Part time work permit up to 20 hours per week.
- World's third leading host country for higher education(after UK and France)
- No requirement of learning French for admission.
- Low transportation cost- if the student is aged less than 25, transportation pass costs 35 EUR/ month, otherwise it is around 45 to 50 EUR/ month