

Hi,

I'm a passionate teacher from India. I have taught all ages and groups on various subjects & love interacting using psychological methods and strategies in my teaching experiences.

I have taught more than 3500 students so far, getting down to their level of understanding and moulding them for their present and future requirements, engaging with them in a make believe scenario while explaining the concepts, leaving no stone unturned and learning from every scenario.

I would love to share my experiences and make others understand the right approach toward learning anything they would want to.

My teaching style involves positivity at every stage, driving learners both big and small to press toward the goal. I aim to provide the best till both individuals are satisfied and the desired result is achieved.

By understanding the students interest levels, I plan my teaching strategies from time to time. Thus my focus is to see if the students attention is maintained through the session.

I have developed training programs that meet the corporate needs & demands and which are customized to the companies and its employees. Our training sessions are most importantly more of hands-on.

By choosing the right training techniques, conducting effective training sessions & evaluating training at every level, I finally create a win-win environment thus building up the participant's self-worth and self-esteem.

The satisfaction every participant would have at the end of the course is great!
