To whom it may concern

The School of Education at the University of Leeds would like to express its gratitude to the staff and students at Global IC for their help in carrying out research funded by IELTS into the links between teaching methodology, students' motivation and score gains in IELTS.

Their support in allowing us our co-investigator, Kalyan Chattopadhyay, to observe classes and interview students and staff at Global IC helped provide the data that enabled us to complete a successful research project.

Yours faithfully
