

“All power is within you, you can do anything and everything”

- Swami Vivekananda

This aphorism not only changed my life but also made me realise about my capabilities, I love to ensure I reach perfection in every work I do, I strongly believe that life becomes meaningless without doing the significant contribution to the chosen area. Life is always a challenge which fetches me many chances to make myself strong. I am grateful for everything I possess.

I would like to introduce myself as Saibaba Gogisetty, I hold a Bachelor's degree in Nursing from NTR Health University. Most of my teachers used to applaud my burning desire for learning, they used to challenge me from time to time to bring out the best in me, I am grateful to them because they taught me the prominence of pragmatic things like empathy, passion, perseverance etc. in life apart from academics, practicing those enhanced my abilities and kept me ahead of others, my friends were very supportive, they could analyse me very well and motivate me to excel in every aspect, this became evident when we were working on a project to assess the depression levels among elders, with my proactive measures we were able finish in a short time with the best outcome. During the final year of my Bachelor's program, luckily I got a chance to work as an Intern at Sri venkateshwara Psychiatric Hospital, Guntur, here I got a chance to understand the distinction between theoretical knowledge and hands on practice, the process developed my acumen on the true qualities of a professional.

After completion of my course, my enthusiasm and dedication for work helped me to work with a premier institution as a member of the Nursing staff, for a few days it was cryptic, at one point of time I thought to leave this profession, later I slowly convinced myself and became an optimist. During this time, I got the overview of the ethical practices followed in the industry to enrich the experience of the patients. The role of the nurse is very crucial in the recuperation of a patient, we can't imagine hospitals without nurses. Here I didn't confine myself to the assigned responsibility, I was meticulously observing the various aspects involved in the industry. My association with senior team members worked wonders for me, they used to take time to explain the intricacies involved in various surgeries. During my stint here, I realised that serving humanity is serving god, I feel pride because I got this wonderful opportunity in my life, in order to dedicate myself to the profession, I felt several times that my existing capabilities weren't sufficient, I decided not only to enhance my skills to prove myself but also to create a stature for me in the society, I decided to take up a big responsibility which would help me to serve many people, the same has been suggested by my well-wishers, my wish can be fulfilled by handling a management role in future. It is evident in certain contexts that my existing skills are not enough to accomplish my aspirations, In order to enhance my skills further, I would like to do Master's program in Business Administration in Hospital Management which would help me to delve deeper into the area. I am keen to know about the various measures followed to run a successful hospital, this course will definitely clarify all my doubts besides giving me a scope for better research.

I am not a sort of person who just adjusts with whatever I get, I never compromise to do relentless work to accomplish of what I want. I know nothing can be attained in life without a passion and consistent effort. My emulations are lucid, my aim is not just to complete the course but the knowledge which I gain from here should help me to implement the best practices in the industry. After completion of the course I am looking forward to work with the pioneers in the industry, after gaining enough expertise, I would like to start my own hospital which can set a trend in the industry. Whatever I gain from here, I would love to give back to the society by providing employment to many people. I have got many reasons to choose xxxuniversity namexxxx", I have meticulously gone through your website and realised that this is the right place for me to turn my dreams into reality, I noticed that you never compromise to provide the best support to scholars, your curriculum is outstanding which can address the future challenges, the course can give me the overview of the industry and the various measures to be taken to maintain coordination with various stake holders. I would be benefitted a lot with industrial visits and interaction with the eminent professionals. I am sure if I am given an opportunity to pursue my masters here, I will become a feather in your cap. Looking forward to hear from you.
